

The A+D Independent Study Flow Chart is designed to guide students in making the most of their study time. While the priority is completing work set in class, students who find themselves with additional free time—whether five minutes or several hours—are encouraged to engage in a variety of meaningful tasks. These activities not only extend learning but also build valuable skills that support long-term achievement. By exploring these tasks, students cultivate independence, creativity, and resilience. We believe it is through developing such traits that they can grow into confident, capable, and successful individuals both in and beyond college.

If you would like more information regarding the A+D curriculum please visit the Home Hub on our website.

Search: HCCART HOME HUB